This afternoon explore the Yarapa River, stopping to go ashore for a walk on the terra firma (un-flooded forest) while your naturalist guide explains the layers of the jungle. Before dinner, enjoy a pisco sour demonstration and tasting. The next day, visit the nearby riverbank village of San Francisco, to see how people along the river live. In the afternoon, enter one of the most biologically diverse rainforests on earth and home to the Kapok tree (ceiba pentandra), sometimes called the king of the forest due to its enormity. This tree can grow to a height of 180 feet!

When darkness falls, take up powerful spotlights for a night safari in search of herons, Spectacled Owls, exotic frogs, tree boas, fish bats, and caimans; in fact, your guide will show you a caiman up close as he takes a young one out of the water. Enjoy stargazing on the river.

After lunch, head down river to La Isla de los Monos (Monkey Island), where conservationists work to return sick and malnourished endangered primates to the wild. You'll get up close and personal with these remarkable monkeys as you wander the island.
